Jean Teillet, a great grand-niece of Louis Riel, is writing a popular history of Riel’s People, the Métis Nation of the North-West. The book covers a two hundred year period and seeks to tell the history from the perspective of the Metis.

The talk will feature a discussion about Riel family documents not in the public domain and a brief reading of the draft book, which is scheduled to be published in 2019 by Harper Collins.