On the Cover

Professor Richard Schaefer spoke to CTV about issues facing the Supreme Court of Canada. In early December of last year the court was about to decide on a case that asked who decides when a hospital patient loses the capacity to make medical decisions. The court said parents of the family 60-year-old Hassan Rasouli, who was on a breathing machine for more than two years in Sunnybrook Hospital after surgery to remove a brain tumour, have the right to decide on medical care for their son. The court's ruling means that doctors have the responsibility to ensure proper care is being provided. The court asked the hospital to produce written records that show what medical decisions had been made for Mr. Rasouli, who suffered a spinal cord injury and was in a persistent vegetative state. The court ruled that the hospital must provide Mr. Rasouli's family with detailed information about the care their son is receiving.

REMEMBERING FOOD SERVICE MANAGER DARYL LUCYK

On behalf of the University of Manitoba's leadership team, faculty and staff, I want to express our deep sadness at the passing of Daryl Lucyk on December 12, 2012. As Manager of University Food Services and Catering for the University of Manitoba, Daryl provided dedicated and invaluable service to our community and was a trusted and respected member of our team. We offer our sincere sympathy to his family.

In addition, I want to express our condolences to his colleagues in food services and catering who will share our sadness and will miss his sound counsel and strong leadership.

Paul A. Kochan, Vice-President (administration)
