Scope of Course

In recent decades, Indigenous people have managed to place some of their concerns on the national agenda, and the resulting debates have revealed widely varying understandings of history. Discussions about residential schools, struggles over land use and ownership, and negotiations around resource use and stewardship are all outcomes of Indigenous people's campaigns to address the effects of colonization on their lives, economies, and communities. In this course we will examine the historic relationships and developments that lie behind many of today's issues. We will investigate the long-standing, frequently shifting Native-newcomer relationships that have played out over the past four centuries. Topics to be covered include: the 12,000 or more years when Indigenous peoples had the continent to themselves; early trade, war, and alliances with Europeans; the fur trade and its long-term effects; European resettlement and intensifying colonialism; treaties and Aboriginal rights; confinement to reserves; state administration; industrialization of Indigenous territories; resurgent Indigenous cultures and political assertion. These issues will be explored via a combination of lectures and team-based work, with occasional audiovisual presentations. In your teams, you will work cooperatively to gain a better understanding of the key developments and broader significance of Native-Newcomer relations in the territories that became Canada. The purpose of the team-based work is to place more of your learning in your hands, make your learning more active and engaged, allow you to make your own discoveries (with my guidance), and help you integrate information more effectively.

Academic Dishonesty

The work you submit for grading must be your own original work, written by you specifically for this course. Students should familiarize themselves with Section 8 of the General Academic Regulations in the online University Calendar and Catalog. University regulations provide severe penalties for academic dishonesty, in the form of plagiarism, cheating, or impersonation at exams. The common penalty in Arts for plagiarism on a written assignment is a grade of F on the paper and a final grade of F (DISC) (for disciplinary action) for the course. For the most serious acts of plagiarism, such as purchase of an essay and repeat violations, this penalty can also include suspension for a period of up to five (5) years from registration in courses taught in a particular department/program in Arts or from all courses taught in this Faculty. I make use of Google checks and internet sites designed to detect plagiarism.
