SOC 7310 Seminar in Intergroup Relations (A01; CRN = 58573)
(Mondays 11:30 AM – 2:15 PM; Instructor: Lori Wilkinson) Lori.Wilkinson@umanitoba.ca
This course is intended to introduce students to a variety of contemporary issues related to immigration and forced migration in Canada and elsewhere. Migration is a large and multi-disciplinary field of study. For this reason, all registered students are asked to complete a short survey to identify the topics for deeper investigation during the semester. Significant portions of the course emphasize the sociological, theoretical, political and practical issues related to the topics selected. By the end of the course, students should be relatively acquainted with the major themes relating to immigration and forced migration on a national and international scale.

SOC 7420 Qualitative Research Methods for Sociological Inquiry (A01; CRN = 57102)
(Thursdays 11:30 AM – 2:15 PM; Instructor: Laura Funk) Laura.Funk@umanitoba.ca
This course provides an overview of methodologies of qualitative research for sociological inquiry. Discussion focuses on the ontological and epistemological foundations of qualitative methods and the variety of approaches and techniques available within interpretive and critical paradigms. Issues such as sampling, reflexivity, analysis, interpretation, theoretical development, rigor and representation will be discussed.

SOC 7450 Selected Topics In Criminology: Global Criminology and Criminal Justice (T04; CRN = 58574)
(Wednesdays 11:30 AM – 2:15 PM; Instructor: Russell Smandych) Russell.Smandych@umanitoba.ca
This course examines current developments and issues in the field of global criminology and criminal justice. Topics include: theory and methods in comparative and global criminology; global crime and world criminal justice systems; transnational and global developments in policing and security; global criminal justice policy transfer; transitional justice; international criminal justice; and the International Criminal Court. The major objective of the course is to assist students to develop a critical appreciation of the global forces that are currently reshaping the field of criminology and issues of importance now being addressed by criminologists. The course is intended both for graduate students in sociology who have an interest in criminology along with students from other fields of study who are interested in developing a global perspective on social issues.
