Tips for Presenters

Consider your audience.
- The people coming to this conference are interested in Social Role Valorization Theory (SRV) and its impact, influence and implementation. Remember that some audience members will be more familiar with SRV theory while others may not be.
- Make your points clearly. Using visuals (Power Point slides and other visuals) can help audience members follow your presentation more readily.

Be prepared.
- Make sure that you send in your slides ahead of time so that these are ready for you. Always have a back-up (slides, presentation notes) in case something happens.
- It is helpful to practice your presentation so that you are comfortable with the timing. Please leave time for questions and comments from the audience.
- While it can be helpful to have handouts, the conference organizers will not have the capacity to copy or prepare handouts for you. You may bring them yourself, or use the Fairmont Hotel’s Business Centre for assistance. The staff at the front desk is able to arrange for copying, printing, scanning and faxing. You will be responsible for any costs that are incurred.

Use your time wisely.
- Each presenter will have a set amount of time. Use it wisely. Be on time for your session. There will be a moderator responsible for ensuring that things go smoothly. Thank you for this important courtesy.
Be enthusiastic, and enjoy the conference!

- We think that you have work that is worth sharing and we are glad that you are coming! We know that you will attend sessions and take part in the discussions in and between the sessions. You can also take advantage of opportunities that the Fairmont Hotel and the city of Winnipeg have to offer you while you are here. The hotel has a health centre that includes a salt water pool, hot tub and sauna as well as exercise equipment. Massage therapy is also available (you must book and pay for this service yourself). The hotel is located in downtown Winnipeg and there are several destinations within walking distance. During the first week in June, the sun will rise shortly after 5:15 a.m. and set after 9:30 p.m. this will give you time to explore the neighbourhood.
