Join us at this public forum on TransCanada’s Energy East Pipeline - a 4,500-kilometre pipeline that will carry over 1 million barrels of crude oil per day from Alberta and Saskatchewan to refineries in Eastern Canada. The panellists will discuss the potential benefits of this project, as well as raise some environmental and socio-economical concerns.

1. Stephane McLachlan, Professor, University of Manitoba
2. Maryam Adrangi, Energy and Climate Campaigner, Council of Canadians
3. Robert Falcon Ouellette, Program Director for the Aboriginal Focus Programs, University of Manitoba
4. Andrew Park, Professor, Biology Department / Centre for Forest Interdisciplinary Research (CFIR), University of Winnipeg
5. Representatives from Manitoba Pipeline Landowners Association and TransCanada (invited).
