According to agency theory, the characteristics of ownership, governance, and control play a critical role in a firm’s risk-taking and information disclosure activities. Family firms have more firm specific information impounded in their stock price, and their accounting earnings are also more informative for stock returns. They undertake fewer risks in corporate investment than non-family firms.

Thursday, July 16
3:15 pm
(together with an interactive session on entrepreneurial finance)
James W. Burns Executive Education Centre
2nd Floor
177 Lombard Avenue

GUEST SPEAKERS:
Dr. Min Maung
Assistant Professor
University of Saskatchewan
Dr. Craig Wilson
Associate Professor
University of Saskatchewan