Human relationships flourish or unravel when trust is lost – Shakespeare was right! Economic relationships likewise fail to develop if trust of strangers cannot be established – Fukuyama is right! But, what societal conditions promote the trusting of unknown others necessary to support an economic actor’s willingness to trust others?

Tuesday
February 5
2:00 pm
Drake Centre
Main Floor

GUEST SPEAKER:
Dr. Michael Bond

Emeritus Professor of Psychology at Chinese University of Hong Kong and Hong Kong Polytechnic University