Parker Building

The Parker Building is named in honour of Dr. Matthew A. Parker, founding member of the Chemistry department and one of the original six science professors at the University of Manitoba. For a number of years, Parker was not only the sole chemistry lecturer at the University of Manitoba but was also the only trained chemist in the entire province of Manitoba. As such, Parker served as the Provincial Analyst for a number of years and traveled the province lecturing on the subject.