The mosaic within the green tile of the St. Paul’s College Chapel is entitled “Christ the King in Glory” and was designed by Lionel Thomas. The chapel superstructure weighs eight hundred tons. The design of the chapel represents a shift in architectural style on campus towards building individuality and uniqueness. Consequently, the chapel was designed with little reference to St. John’s College and its chapel and made no attempt to be consistent with other buildings on campus.