Acting Dean, Division of Extended Education

Congratulations from the dean

On behalf of my colleagues in the Division of Extended Education at the University of Manitoba, I want to congratulate you on your achievements. Earning a Certificate or Letter of Accomplishment at any time is worth celebrating but at this particularly challenging time in our lives, it is even more noteworthy. The pandemic has reminded us all of the importance of being able to adapt quickly, learn independently, and search for new ways to apply what we learn, and I trust that the courses you have taken through Extended Education have allowed you to “extend” your learning in these ways. Although there continues to be uncertainty about when our current challenges will end, we have faith that all 141 of you graduating from 16 different programs will be well-positioned to thrive in the post-COVID era, thanks to the time you spent in Extended Education.

Congratulations once again and best wishes for the future.

Stay safe and keep well!

David Mandzuk, Ph.D.
Acting Dean, Extended Education

Continuing and Professional Studies Programs

Certificate in Business Analysis

The Business Analysis Certificate provides a thorough introduction to the latest Guide to the Business Analysis Book of Knowledge (BABOK Guide). The BABOK Guide is the tool used by Business Analysts to define the needs, and make effective recommendations, which deliver value to stakeholders. Graduates have the core knowledge and competencies necessary to enter the workforce as a junior analyst. Business Analysis is a growing profession with employment opportunities in government, educational institutions, and private business. This certificate counts as professional development credits, required to write the IIBA Entry Certificate in Business Analysis (ECBA) certification exam, for those who wish to continue their professional development in this field.

Veronica R. Alcaraz Uribe

Certificate in Applied Counselling

The Applied Counselling Certificate provides an introduction to the counselling process and helps learners develop effective counselling strategies. It is ideally suited for anyone working in a counselling context through paid or volunteer work. Participants' varied workplaces include: health care, education, social services, and government.

Through this program, the student can choose a General Stream or Specialization in Addictions Studies. The latter combines courses in the ACC program with courses from the Addictions Foundation of Manitoba (<https://afm.mb.ca/>).
