Education Elective Courses offered 2020-2021

Course Descriptions for courses offered as different topics:

EDUB 3502 T43 – Teaching & Learning Science through Popular Culture

This section will use elements of popular culture in the form of movies, television shows, Youtube videos, music, and literature as the context for inquiry to explore teaching and learning science. Featuring a mythbuster-esque approach to initiating and conducting inquiry-based projects this course is punctuated with hands-on and minds-on examples of lessons and activities designed to engage students in a modern classroom. While science phenomena located in the 9-12 curricula will be the focus, students with all discipline backgrounds are welcome to enroll in this class!

EDUB 3502 T49 – Cultivating Compassion Training for Classroom Teachers

This contemplative, experiential and participatory course aims to cultivate teacher candidates' personal wellbeing, healthy relationships with others, and just, equitable and sustainable relationships with larger communities and systems. Drawing upon secular ethical values and actions based on principles of "common humanity" and "interdependence", teacher candidates will practise compassion for themselves, others, and the natural world—enhancing their happiness, appreciation and gratitude, as well as their strength, courage and resilience in times of heightened conflict, stress, and uncertainty. Utilizing the resources of Compassionate Communication, teacher candidates will also deepen their understandings of and connections with themselves and others, foster the quality of compassion necessary to co-create life-enriching, peaceful classrooms, and design prosocial, critically-engaged curricula in which they and their students thrive.
