Reflecting on the Past to Reconcile the Future

SPONSORSHIP OPPORTUNITIES

JANUARY 23 – 24, 2020

Celebrating the 50th Anniversary of Ongomiizwin - Health Services
(formerly J.A. Hildes Northern Medical Unit)
THE UNIVERSITY OF MANITOBA AND INDIGENOUS HEALTH

The Rady Faculty of Health Sciences' Indigenous Institute of Health and Healing – Ongomiizwin, established in 2017, is the largest Indigenous education and health unit in Canada. Its mandate is to provide leadership and advance excellence in research, education and health services in collaboration with First Nations, Métis and Inuit communities. Its work is guided by Knowledge Keepers and Elders and helps to achieve health and wellness of Indigenous Peoples.

The institute brings together Ongomiizwin – Research, Ongomiizwin – Education, and Ongomiizwin – Health Services (OHS). Ongomiizwin (Clearing a path for generations to come) affirms the University of Manitoba’s commitment to building respectful relationships and creating pathways to Indigenous health, healing and achievement.

ONGOMIIZWIN – HEALTH SERVICES

Ongomiizwin – Health Services (formerly J.A. Hildes Northern Medical Unit) was established July 1, 1970 by the late Dr. John Arthur (Jack) Hildes, a respected and committed physician and researcher who was an early advocate for the recognition of the rights of all Indigenous Peoples.

Supporting Indigenous communities’ self-determination and contributing to their health and well-being are guiding principles of Ongomiizwin - Health Services with the hope that one day all First Nations, Métis, and Inuit Peoples will have full and equitable access to quality and continuous health services and improved health outcomes.

RECONCILIATION

Ongomiizwin is leading the implementation of the Rady Faculty of Health Sciences’ Reconciliation Action Plan, developed in response to the health-related calls to action made by the Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada.

The Reconciliation Action Plan was developed through a collaborative 18-month process involving Elders and Knowledge Keepers, faculty, staff, students, alumni and community members. It addresses themes such as honouring traditional knowledge and healing practices; providing safe learning environments; improving support and retention of Indigenous students; educating all students and faculty in cultural safety and anti-racism; and removing barriers to health professional education.
The work Ongomiizwin – Health Services performs in supporting communities’ self-determination is critical to the U of M’s efforts toward reconciliation. It does so through working in partnership with Indigenous communities to bring clinical services closer to home and to provide continuity of care and specialists’ services; supporting Indigenous learners; facilitating cultural safety education among learners and faculty; and creating health career pathways for youth.

By aligning with community Indigenous values and vision and building respectful relationships with communities and government partners, Ongomiizwin - Health Services is more community centered and reflective of each of the communities it serves.

ONGOMIIZWIN - RESEARCH INDIGENOUS HEALTH SYMPOSIUM
Ongomiizwin - Research Indigenous Health Research Symposium takes place January 23-24, 2020 at the University of Manitoba Bannatyne campus. The annual symposium offers Elders, community members, youth, students, and researchers the opportunity to share ideas about Indigenous health research. This year’s theme “Past, Present, Future: Telling our stories” explores the importance of partnering with Indigenous communities to engage in research, looking back at the past and forging a future ahead that will lead to reconciliation.

ONGOMIIZWIN – HEALTH SERVICES 50TH ANNIVERSARY GALA
The gala dinner will take place Friday, January 24, 2020 at The Fairmont Winnipeg. It will celebrate the University of Manitoba’s leadership in Indigenous health, Ongomiizwin - Health Services’ 50th anniversary and pay tribute to the many partners and communities with whom we’ve worked over the past five decades and envision a future of community health care self-determination.

Keynote speaker Ovide Mercredi, lawyer, advocate and former national chief, Assembly of First Nations, will be joined by University of Manitoba faculty, staff and students of the University of Manitoba, Ongomiizwin, Indigenous organizations, practicing and retired OHS physicians, allied health professionals, partners, alumni and community members.

LEGACY FUND
We have established the OHS 50th anniversary legacy fund to support an Indigenous health workforce to mark the U of M’s milestone in providing health services to Indigenous communities in Manitoba and the North for the past 50 years. Revenue realized through sponsorships and donations will be directed to this fund to support and expand opportunities for Indigenous Peoples to enter careers in the health sciences.
