Seek out opportunities to get involved with the Indigenous community on campus. Through the Qualico Bridge to Success and the Neechiwaken Peer Mentorship Program, I developed the necessary skills to thrive. Coming to the University of Manitoba was one of the best choices I’ve made. It’s not everywhere that has the type of caring, driven and like-minded people you find yourself surrounded by at UM.

Teaching and learning

Outstanding teaching, innovative learning experiences and exceptional research are the foundation of the University of Manitoba. These three core activities generate meaningful and enduring impact on campus, in the community and around the globe.

UM educators—many of whom are world renowned—are passionate about their chosen fields of study, excited to advise and share knowledge with students, and eager to investigate, invent and inspire, while helping to develop new leadership and expertise and make a difference in the world.

Dr. Marcia Friesen, recently appointed dean of the Price Faculty of Engineering, is active in both research and teaching activities. As a recipient of a 2019-20 Indigenous Initiatives Fund and NSERC Chair in Design Engineering, Dr. Friesen supported the work of Indigenous scholar Shawn Bailey (Architecture and Engineering) and Farhoud Delijani (Engineering) to lead an eight-week course giving students the opportunity to work collaboratively with community members of Shoal Lake 40 First Nation. The project was intended to design and build a feasting shelter at the community’s new Pow Wow grounds with Indigenous knowledge(s) and design principles, and foster awareness among non-Indigenous students toward their future architectural and engineering practice in Manitoba and Canada.

UM is the only medical doctoral and the largest post-secondary institution in the province.

Dr. Jim Peebles, [BSc(Hons)/58, DSc/89] received the Nobel Prize in physics in 2019.

Undergraduate research opportunities are available in almost every faculty from fine arts to science.

DID YOU KNOW?
Home to more than 80 research chairs, UM is a leader in research excellence that is reflected across key areas including Arctic system science and technology, health and well-being, Indigenous research, human rights and social justice.

TIPS

In addition to the entrance scholarships, there are a wide range of other funding sources that may require an application. Here are some tips to help you succeed:

- Do your research. Know the details of each award before starting your application.
- You get what you put in—results often reflect time and effort spent.
- It is worth your time. An hour of effort could result in a $100 award or more.
- Create a personal portfolio—accomplishments, achievements, resume, personal summary, etc.
- Don’t take yourself out of the running. Many awards go unallocated because no one applied!
- Know your finances—create a budget and stick to it.

We’re here to help! Visit umanitoba.ca/financial-aid-and-awards or contact awards@umanitoba.ca

First Nations, Non-Status, Métis or Inuit students are encouraged to reach out to our Indigenous team for support.

BAND FUNDING

SPONSORSHIP AND GOVERNMENT BENEFITS

Financial sponsorship for eligible Indigenous students may include tuition, fees, mandatory books, supplies and allowance.

- Treaty/Status First Nation students can apply to receive post-secondary education sponsorship—financial assistance to alleviate the above listed costs as well as travel costs. Students are advised to contact their Education Authority, Band or Tribal Council from their community.
- Inuit students should contact designated organizations or regional Indigenous Services Canada (ISC) to determine eligibility.
- Métis and Non-Status Indian students entering full-time studies may be eligible for sponsorship. Students are advised to contact the MMF Post-Secondary Education Support Program.

Please reach out to the Indigenous Student Recruitment team if you would like assistance with sponsorship applications: indigenous_recruitment@umanitoba.ca

Once accepted to UM, the EmpoweringU Financial Wellness Program is available to assist Indigenous students with setting financial goals, budgeting and debt management. The program includes workshops, speaker sessions and other resources to help you make informed financial decisions.

STUDENT LOANS

CANADIAN STUDENT LOANS

Federal and provincial student loan programs provide no-payment/interest free loans to eligible Canadian students who are studying full-time. Students should apply prior to June 30.

Visit ed.gov.mb.ca/msa for more information.

US GOVERNMENT LOANS

American students may apply for government student loans under the William D. Ford Federal Direct Loan Program. To apply for a Direct Loan, complete your Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA).

Visit umanitoba.ca/financial-aid-and-awards for more information.
The cost of a university education is more than just tuition and books. Estimate your living costs to create an education budget: rent, damage deposit, housing insurance, utilities, child care, family expenses, groceries, and vehicle costs. Don’t be discouraged by the cost of education, especially if your chosen career is in demand. Most students pay for post-secondary education with a combination of funds from many sources: savings, scholarships, bursaries, sponsorship, wages, and loans.

I chose the University of Manitoba in part because of the straightforward application process and the advising team who helped guide me. My entry to UM through University 1 was extremely beneficial as I could study at the post-secondary level in all different areas of subjects while being able to actively upgrade my pre-requisites for classes in the faculty I wanted to be part of.

Our commitment to Indigenous engagement

UM alumni are some of the country’s brightest stars—alumna Sonya Ballantyne recently inspired the creation of a Cree Barbie doll.

OFFICE OF THE VICE-PRESIDENT (INDIGENOUS)
The Vice-President (Indigenous) leads the development and implementation of a university-wide strategy that promotes reconciliation, advances UM’s commitment to Indigenous engagement and achievement through initiatives, programs, curriculum and research and addresses anti-Indigenous racism. Guided by Indigenous-focused principles, this work is done in partnership with executive leadership, deans and directors. The Vice-President (Indigenous) position was established in October 2019. Dr. Catherine Cook was appointed to the role for a period beginning Jan. 1, 2020 through June 30, 2022.

NATIONAL CENTRE FOR TRUTH AND RECONCILIATION (NCTR)
The University of Manitoba is committed to the journey of reconciliation and to advancing Indigenous rights, research and scholarship. The National Centre for Truth and Reconciliation (NCTR) at UM was born out of the Indian Residential Schools Settlement Agreement to preserve the history of Canada’s residential school system and legacy forever.

The Truth and Reconciliation Commission’s sacred collection of statements, documents and other materials is at the heart of the NCTR. Reflecting the shared vision of residential school Survivors, the NCTR serves as a place of learning and dialogue that honours the authenticity of the Survivors’ experiences and preserves their past for future generations.

In preserving this sacred collection of materials, the NCTR ensures that:

- Survivors and their families have access to their own histories.
- Educators in the K-12, post-secondary, professional and public service sectors understand the shared experience of Indigenous peoples and Survivors.
- Researchers can explore the residential school system and assimilation efforts.
- The public can access historical records and other materials to help foster reconciliation and healing.
- The history and legacy of the Residential School system will never be forgotten.

We invite you to explore the materials at the NCTR and on the NCTR website in meaningful and personal ways. You are welcome to visit the NCTR anytime during operational hours.
